The Orange Justice, the Floss, the Default Dance, and the Hype are all dances included in the online video game phenomenon, Fortnite. It became popular around the globe within a year of its release date. Influenced by her close friend Charlie Blair (8), a now Fortnite enthusiast, Samantha Hughes (8), plays the game in her free time and performs the dances with her friends. "I have been playing Fortnite since the third season, and we are currently at the seventh," Hughes said.

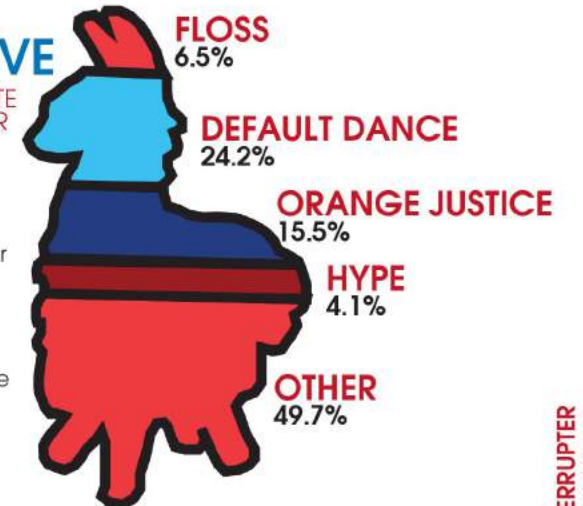

Introduced to Fornite by one of his friends, Keissen Withey

(7) has played since season four. Withey takes joy in the dances as a celebration in victory. "What I enjoy about Fortnite is playing with my friends, because we play squads and duos," Withey said.

You don't have to play the game to do the dances, Talia Sweeney (7) learned the dances with her friends from Instagram and Youtube videos. "I learned the Fortnite dances through my friends and social media," Sweeney said. This online hobby has been around for almost two years and will stay around for longer.
