

RIDING THE SNOWY SLOP

Students share their experiences as the

Photo courtesy of Luke Fischer

Photo courtesy of Brady Campbell

Photo courtesy of Nick Scanlon

Photo courtesy of Cole Cashman

WINTER PLAYGROUND

Luke Fischer (7) jumps into the air in Winter Park, Colorado, Feb. 1. Fischer skis every couple of weeks. “I love going up to the mountains to ski because of the jumps,” Fischer said.

TREES AROUND

Brady Campbell (7) is shown in front of the mountains in Vail, Feb. 1. Campbell skis just about every week. “My favorite part is the exhilaration of going down the mountain,” Campbell said.

SNOWY SATURDAY

Nick Scanlon (8) (center), Drew Peterson (8) (left), and Aiden Susavilla (8) pose together before skiing the mountains of Keystone, Colorado, Feb. 4. “My favorite part about skiing is being with my friends,” Scanlon said.

PEES

...y ski and snowboard on the slopes.

Photo Courtesy of: Wyatt Tran

Photo Courtesy of: Sam Record

KEEPING IT COOL IN COLORADO

This year, here in Colorado, we got a joyful amount of snow. Between snow days and cold breezes, there were plenty of days to head up to the gorgeous Rocky Mountains and ski and snowboard. Many students here enjoy skiing and snowboarding. “My favorite part of skiing is going down the mountains and the views of the trees,” Allison Jones (8) said. Between the snow in your face, the terrain park, and more, skiing and snowboarding were definitely considered a winter favorite among Nighthawks.

WHISTLING DOWN THE MOUNTAIN

Wyatt Tran (7) skis off a jump in Whistler Blackcomb, British Columbia, Jan. 29. Tran skis very often on many different mountains in many different states. “My favorite part about skiing is the terrain park,” Tran said.

CATCHING AIR

Sam Record (8) does a trick into the powder, Feb. 1. Record snowboards almost every weekend with his friends and family. “My favorite part of snowboarding is learning new and improved skills,” Record said.