What an Honor!

The "what" and "why" of the National Honor Society

Members of the National Honor Society collaborate to plan and organize events that will raise money for the school or a charity. "We plan service projects for the school and community fundraisers," Ms. Chris said, who is an advisor of the PGA branch of the National Honor Society, "Last year, we planned a Readathon and raised $800 for the school!" Middle and high school students and apply to join NHS, which is a nationwide organization centered on scholarship, leadership, service, and character.

Ask a member What do you do in NHS?

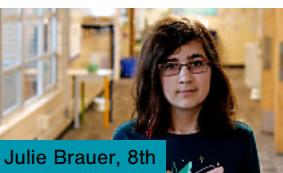

Alexander Gilson, 9th

"NHS figures out ways to motivate people to donate. We figure out what will make them care."

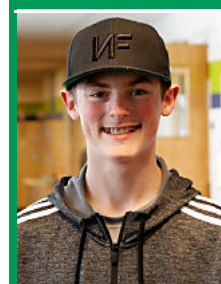

Julia Warnock, Co-President, 10th

"I read meetings with the co-presidents, we can come up with fundraisers by getting ideas from current problems."

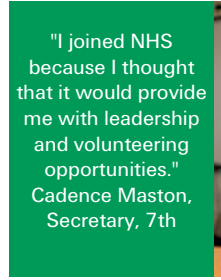

Julie Brauer, 8th

"In the National Honors Society, I do fundraisers and volunteer my time to help the community."

"I joined because I thought that it would be a fun experience where I would get to help others. We are really good at helping people with hard or expensive jobs."
Landon Fowler, 8th

"I joined NHS because I thought that it would provide me with leadership and volunteering opportunities."
Cadence Maston, Secretary, 7th

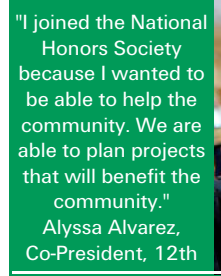

Living for Unity

The National Honor Society is a considerably meaningful thing to have on your college application, but what other reasons are there for joining? Why is it a significant thing to be a part of?

"I joined because I wanted to be a part of the community. I wanted a bigger, more important role as a student here."
Madison Gill-Twitt, 9th

"I joined the National Honors Society because I wanted to be able to help the community. We are able to plan projects that will benefit the community."
Alyssa Alvarez, Co-President, 12th

Early morning Meeting

NHS members meet twice a month to organize events that will raise money to benefit the community.
