RILED UP: Loudly chanting alongside her friends, Janae Joshua '20, shows her spirit at the CV DC varsity football game on Sept. 20. She enjoyed the excitement her classmates showed in the bleachers and the memories they made overall. "I'd describe being at a CVDC football game as one of the most monumental high school events. The energy is always high and it's probably the peak of Castle View school spirit," Joshua said.

LET'S GET A LITTLE BIT BOLD

Castle View is defined by the people who go there, the energy they have and the ways they support each other. After four years of playing football, Antonio Ursetta '20 thinks of the Sabercat Nation as his family.

"The best part about being a Sabercat is probably just being one because we're the only school out there that can be Sabercats. We're one big family. We're all under one roof. Even when we're competing, we're still one school; we still love each other," Ursetta said.

There's cheering. Chanting. Screaming. Unmistakable energy when CV shows up at games and events.

"We're a very close school. We always try to show up and cheer people on. It's unbelievable how loud people get and how rowdy people get," Clayton Mullens '22 said.

There are over 70 clubs ranging from Speech and Debate to the Lettuce Eating Club. There are 24 different sports, each with at least two levels. Each club and sport has a big event - opening night of the musical, the rival game, Trick or Treat Street. At each of those events, people are there to support them.

"I think that CV has a lot more moments than other schools where everyone is really connected and all on the same team. As a school, we are really supportive of our sports teams and other clubs, which I think is different from a lot of other schools," Josephine Defnet '21 said.

Participation allows students to be supported by their peers as they pursue their passions and interests.

"There's a lot of clubs and a lot of energy. We're super enthusiastic and supportive because everyone wants our school to do well and so everyone just cheers each other on. It's very energetic and positive," Andrea Lee '23 said.

FINISHING WITH A BANG: Carrying Lindsey Rettmer '22, Ethan Marti '22 finishes the sophomore dance at Showdown with an unexpected prop and blast of a confetti cannon. Entertaining the entire school thrilled Marti. "It was really fun, and I was happy to be part of the performance and help hype people up and hang out with talented dancers," Marti said.

1. TOASTY WARM: Roasting marshmallows at the bonfire, Ella Powers '21 blows out one of her marshmallows that caught on fire. She thought it would be funny and interesting to make s'mores with her friends over the raging fire. "Me and my friends got long tree branches and roasted marshmallows in the fire because we thought it would be fun," Powers said. 2. LITTLE MS. SUNSHINE: In character, Aspen Parker '20 gives an opening soliloquy to introduce the courtroom scene in "Chicago." Parker enjoyed the variety in each of the eight shows. "I came off stage on different nights and would be like, 'wow that audience was fantastic' or 'wow, that audience really didn't like that part,'" Parker said. 3. ANOTHER WIN: Avoiding the player, Zane Wodark '21 rushes to the goal line. For the fifth year in a row, Castle View beat Douglas County High School in the annual homecoming football game. "Playing DC is always a fun game. My goal for next year is to get bigger, stronger," Wodark said.

passion shapes the Sabercat energy. A passion that motivates, that pushes people to be better, that sets Castle View's standard for excellence.

"If you're involved in the school, there's always something that keeps you going. Choir has definitely kept me engaged and excited to be here. Mr. [Heath] and Mrs. [Rochelle] Walter, Ms. [Sabrina] Gentry, their impact on me and my life is something that keeps me motivated to keep doing my best. Not just in the arts, but my grades too, so I can keep participating and trying to make them proud because they mean a lot to me," Kalei Fogg '20 said.

Golf players tend to spend more time on the range than at home. Every round of golf is hours long. When they're not playing, they're practicing. Jacob Hardman '21 knows that golf has taught him a valuable lesson: time management.

"You have to learn how to multi-task. You have to go to practice four days a week and you have to do that on top of your homework. That's what makes it worth it to me - the chance to improve myself academically as well as in my golf game," Hardman said.

For close to 12 years, Alena Tucker '22 has been doing gymnastics. She's cut her training down from 21 hours a week to 11 for her sophomore year. The most rewarding part are the competitions - showing her family, the judges and total strangers that she can do what very few can.

"What makes it worth it is just being able to compete - when you compete with a new routine and it all comes together. I was at a state competition and I won [the] floor [event]. Floor is not always my best event. So to be able to say I was the best in the state in my age group, I think that was probably one of my best memories," Tucker said.

LITTLE bit spirited

et's get a little bit rowdy, sure. But what does that mean?

It's the wild jostling in the stands at the football game against that school across town, fighting for The Rock. The pride we take in beating them for five years in a row and proving that red pounds purple. The students huddled around the bonfire. Hormones raging, and confidence burning as hot as the wood pallets.

It's four hours of chaos during Showdown that feels more like 45 minutes. It's the shouting matches between the classes and the ringing ears that follow.

It's that uncontrollable urge each class feels to stomp right before they scream, "Do it. Do it. Do it. Don't stop. Don't stop. Don't stop." Over and over and over. Louder and louder and louder.

It's the unruly moment the seniors rush out of the gym at the 'Move-Up' ceremony, yearning for the freedom and independence that comes with graduation. The moment the juniors accept their status as seniors, and the other students settle into their new bleacher seats. The moment the eighth graders stumble into the gym and try to sing the fight song with the same enthusiasm and confidence as everyone else.

It's the unpredictable moments throughout the year - like when a freshman landed a lead in the fall musical, belting "They both reached for the gun" from "Chicago."

Or when the sophomore class trudged out of the first-day assembly early because Dr. Corr wasn't there, and we don't cheer without Dr. Corr.

It's the scandalous August afternoon when bathrooms and classrooms were Axe-bombed, poisoning the halls with the smell of Dark Temptation and Apollo XL - as if any freshman boy would need to smell like Dark Temptation.

That's a little bit rowdy. And that's who and what we are.

I really like the atmosphere of all the students at CV. No matter what grade you're in, everyone interacts with each other in the same way. I love how involved everyone is as well. Like all of the sporting events I attend and assemblies are so loud and fun."

WE CAN'T HEAR YOU: Waving his hands and mocking the Douglas County High School student section during a party cheer, Zach Cushman '20 hypes up the crowd. Cushman was selected by administration to be a student leader in front of the crowd. "Collaborating with other seniors and people in the crowd was a lot of fun and it was cool seeing everyone do them as well," Cushman said.

1. SMILING AT SUNRISE: Putting her handprint next to the other seniors', Abbey Lehn '20 writes her name alongside the print proudly. The last year of high school brought unfamiliar emotions. "Senior sunrise was cool because it's a unique way to start senior year. It's exciting to be a senior, but it's kind of surreal," Lehn said. 2. BREAKAWAY: Blocking his opponent, Tiernan Freiburger '21 races with the ball towards the goal. More students came to support the soccer team this year. "I like that we had more fans than usual this year," Freiburger said.

1. REACH FOR THE SKY: Shooting and scoring, Jalen Brown '20 makes a basket. For him, scoring filled his excitement every time and doing it constantly alongside his team keeps him motivated. "I don't think there are any instances where we don't really work well together," Brown said. 2. N-SYNC: Mid-performance, Joseph Simpson '21 is lifted up by his friends. In the school's lip sync battle on Dec. 5, Simpson and his boys' lacrosse team performed 'Sexy Back' by Justin Timberlake. "My favorite part of lip sync battle is when people lip sync and it's funny," Simpson said.

1. NET WORTH: Flinging the ball at one of their few scrimmages this season at Douglas County Stadium, Jack Tuttle '20, enjoys making team plays. After scoring, he felt an emotion that couldn't be obtained in any other way. "My favorite part of lacrosse is the thrill of making a big play," Tuttle said. 2. THE VIRUS: The COVID-19 virus strikes the world by storm causing total lockdowns with direct impacts on the students and staff at Castle View High School. It was so large and extremely impactful that it canceled all classes, after school events and sports, as well as postponing major school events like prom. "The most unexpected thing for me was the COVID-19 virus canceling everything. I'm glad it didn't affect my cheer though," Ethan Laman Thornton '21 said.

1. PIN IT TO WIN IT: Lifting his hand in victory, Corbin Zimmer '21 pins his opponent at the state competition on Feb. 20. Zimmer went into the state competition expecting to come out on top. “State was pretty much what we were expecting, but in my last match I was a point away from winning and that would have put me on the podium, so I wish I could re-wrestle that match,” Zimmer said. 2. OFF THE PAGE: Studying the rocks in the river, Madelyn Priest '21 enjoys her AP environmental science field trip. 1. IN THE SPOTLIGHT: Alongside her friends Margaret Caron '21 and Camden Wright '23, Emma Spears '22 sings 'All I Care About Is Love' in the musical "Chicago." Being with her peers for hours every day brought them closer and made the experience enjoyable. "The best part of the musical is how everyone involved becomes a family. We spend so much time together doing what we are passionate about, and it's really cool being around a lovely group of people with a common interest of using theatre to share joy with others," Spears said. 2. UP TO PAR: Watching his ball fly through the air, Casey Jacobsen '21 competes at the state competition. The golf team had some troubles competing in the competition. "State golf didn't go as well as we wanted. All of us had some decent moments, but more bad holes than good ones," Jacobsen said.

LET'S GET A LITTLE BIT ROWDY

Okay, so we're rowdy. What does it matter?

"Take risks. It's so, so important to do absolutely everything you can while you can still do it. Do something stupid," Abigail Heppenstall '22 said.

We did.

We watched and recorded and shared fights from the library to the commons.

"There was this one day where kids chased each other around the lunch room for like 20 minutes. I don't know if it was a fight or what, but it's the most entertaining thing I've seen all year," Lily Defnet '23 said.

We crowded the commons and watched when kids went to the courtyard to get their hair cut into a mullet.

We slept until noon on weekends after spending the week avoiding homework and staying up too late and coming to school feeling dead the next day. We did over and over and over.

We spent too much time on Tik Tok. We got songs stuck in our heads and found ourselves doing dances without even realizing it. Hundreds of kids at our school became Tik Tok famous.

With varying degrees of success, we tried to escape non-travel Advisement and stuffy assemblies in the gym. We were stopped by Ms. Amanda Malson and the other teachers guarding the doors. Unless you were experienced or lucky or both.

"IT'S SO, SO IMPORTANT TO DO ABSOLUTELY EVERYTHING YOU CAN WHILE YOU CAN"

THE PARTY'S OVER HERE: Holding a traffic cone, Lucas Campbell '20 cheers at the rivalry football game on Sept. 20, 2019. Campbell enjoyed participating in big school events and showing off his school spirit. "School doesn't have to be boring. If everyone participates in stuff, it ends up being more fun, and gives the whole student body something to look forward to," Campbell said.

DUN-KING: While playing against Thomas Jefferson High School, Paradiso Dante '20 dunks the ball. A video of the dunk got over 40,000 views on Instagram. "You can deal with a crowd in two ways. You can either block out and focus on your game, or you feed from what they say to you and put it towards your game," Dante said.
