1. FIRED UP. Supported by the marching band, senior Harrison Dico-Jekot grins as he leads the bonfire crowd in a cheer. Dico-Jekot commented, "Leading cheers at the bonfire was a thrilling drumming experience." 2. MOMENT OF SCIENCE. As part of an AP Environmental Science lab, Cinthia Roman-Cervantes (12) observes insects found by the creek. Roman-Cervantes shared, "The biodiversity lab was super interesting because we all got to go outside and get a unique sample to look at under a microscope." 3. STIRRING UP TREBLE. Senior Francesca Montgomery performs the tune 'Old Devil Moon' with vocal jazz at the annual Collage Concert. "The collage concert was extra special to me because it marked my last first choir concert," said Montgomery. 4. PLAY AS ONE. Nathaniel Padilla-Martinez sprints at top speed in pursuit of his Lincoln opponent. Padilla-Martinez expressed, "I don't set out to be different, I set out to be me." 5. THE PRINCESS IS HERE. Arm in arm with Mr. Montgomery, junior Kiki Nau struts across the gym to accept her place on the Homecoming court. "I felt honored when I realized I had been nominated, and it really made this experience special," said Nau.

COR LIONIS VOL 81

Embracing Littleton's beloved mascot, Rory, principal Dr. Oaks shares a few words of encouragement at the homecoming football game. "Lions can run 50 miles per hour, can leap 36 feet, and their roars can be heard 5 miles away. What could be a better high school mascot? We LOVE our lions," stated Oaks. photo courtesy of Beth Rossman

WE ARE eighth grader Vincent Anderson being true to himself despite pressures to conform.

ONE LIFE.

WE ARE senior Holly Rossman dancing with the Lionettes then conducting the marching band as a twin drum major at halftime.

ONE CHANCE.

WE ARE junior Emily Christian pushing the boundaries of art genres using digital media.

ONE MIND.

WE ARE sophomore Sophia Kelly screaming the rowdy cheer at the top of her lungs at every game.

ONE TEAM.

WE ARE fans who show up for the football team win or lose, scholars that form study groups when the stress is high, artists on display at the Littleton Depot, jazz musicians performing in the lobby, blood drive donors, climate change strikers, spikeball players, Chipotle eaters, timer-pic takers, and car scrapers.

ONE US.

IN THE ZONE. Senior Tayvis Sagrillo-Smiley prepares to shoot two free throws during a winning game against Conifer. "I think the team has come a lot closer since the beginning of the year and as we've come closer our relationship on the court got better too," said Sagrillo-Smiley. photo by Holly Rossman

Ten months, thirty six weeks, one hundred seventy three days, two snow days, four delayed start mornings, and one thousand two hundred forty-five students transitioned to "distance learning".

Eighty nine games won, four theater productions, thirteen DECA champions, twelve speech and debate state qualifiers, twenty IB diploma candidates, two hundred hours of community service projects, fifty four Key Club students battling the global water crisis, one hundred greenhouse plants grown, countless daily Starbucks runs, and two unexpected weeks of spring break...

ONE YEAR.

We were in the stands during our basketball girls' exciting senior night win; we were in the classroom feeling the satisfaction after turning in that biology IA we worked on for weeks; we greeted each other in the halls after every class; we laughed during productions of Urinetown and Geek; we gleamed with pride at art shows, marching band halftimes, and choir concerts. We were caught sneaking snacks into the library, we were held up in the traffic jams in the main lobby, we learned the new normal of social distancing and we didn't let the changes to our daily routines steal the joy of all we accomplished. We were disappointed. We were challenged. We were stressed. We were resilient, and definitely hopeful.

BUT THROUGH IT ALL...

WE WERE ONE.
