

IN THE MIDDLE OF

ETHING

Something

We care about stuff kids have always cared about: family and friends, fitting in, crushes, grades and our appearance. But there's stuff my parents never had had to worry about, like getting burned on Insta, getting grounded from our phones and totally losing our social life, getting the coronavirus, and global warming. Like, how are we supposed to fix that? It's a lot all at once, and I just need to get to soccer practice. Look, I don't know what it'll all mean in the future, or even tomorrow for that matter. I can only tell you what it's like right here, right now, in the middle of something.
