

The Original Three

Q1: What was your vision for the team four years ago when the program started?

Q2: What is your vision for years to come?

Q1: My goal was to have the team compete and build a foundation of learning.

Q2: My vision is to improve even more so much as to be feared by others, and make girls want to play softball

Q1: From past experiences, I wanted to build a program allowing girls to go out and compete.

Q2: My vision is to have the team stay a family, keeping the same attitude throughout

Q1: My goal was to make a difference and give girls the opportunity to try another sport.

Q2: My vision is for girls to love the sport, making others want to play, and playing for those who can't.

Starting the second year as a varsity team, and the fourth year as a program, Alamosa Softball vision for the season was to play for her. The season altogether started with tough competition, however the team fought with confidence and pride. The girls persevered through the mental toughness and kept the tradition of family alive through the whole season. Coach Vigil stated that her vision for this year and years to come is to continue building the foundation of the sport and give girls more opportunities and camaraderie. Coach Taylor wishes for the girls to keep the tradition of competitiveness and continue to challenge themselves outside of their regular
