"Before every game I like to eat a Snickers bar and listen to Stranger Things music. It pumps me up and gives me energy. I like playing basketball because I get to hang with my friends so when I graduate that is probably the biggest thing I'll miss because of the bonds and memories. When I lose a game I try to remember that there are more important things in life and I shouldn't stress about it too much. I am not very excited to graduate because I'm kind of nervous and I don't really want to get involved with the real world. Playing basketball taught me many lessons, one of those being to accept all the wins and losses and relate them to the real world."

In Your Face- Senior, Ian Jackson slam dunks it to celebrate an end to one of the last games of regular season. As one of the top scorers of the game, he decided to top it off.

"The feeling that playing basketball gives me is like the feeling of art. Dribbling the ball up and down the court, taking a shot and watching it go in is the best feeling in the world. The team atmosphere is great. We are like one big family, from the C team to Varsity everyone supports each other so everyone feels equally important. It's great and I would not ask for any other team. While playing this year, my coach has given me some great advice. So great that I can't pick just one to share. To stay motivated after losing a game, I like to look around and see the seniors as they only have this season left, I want them to achieve their goals. Knowing that's going to be me next year motivates me to keep wanting to get better."
