

KRAM 2/24/21 Student Commentary

Each KRAM class has four or five head editors. Each head editor runs a group of 3 to 4 other students to produce each news package within the episode. After all the news packages are complete, the anchors are filmed and then the head editors meet to combine the anchoring and the news packages. During the pandemic, much of this was done virtually through MS Teams, including many of the interviews and the anchor filming. Our school was extremely limited on in-person meetings. Cover footage was frequently shot with a cell phone. It was definitely more difficult of a production process.
