

The Hunt for Photos

The Yearbook Staff Go on a Photo Scavenger Hunt

Reese Waller(8)(Left) and Ava Martinez(8) partnered up for the yearbook practice photos on Aug. 31. Waller showed Martinez the picture that she took to get Martinez's opinion. "I was showing my partner, Ava, the picture I had taken of her," Waller said.

Photo By: Makenna Moore

Photo By: Makenna Moore

Photo By: Makenna Moore

Photo By: Makenna Moore

Ava Martinez(8) taking a candid shot of her partner, Aug. 31. Martinez wanted to learn how the different shot types looked in a spread. "I was taking a photo of Reese Waller, and I used it for my partner spread," Martinez said.

Reese Waller(8) doing practice photos for the yearbook, Aug. 31. Waller was experimenting with shot frames. "I was taking a picture of Ava for practice so I could take better pictures in the future." Waller said.

Gracynn Smith (8) taking pictures for the Yearbook practice day, Aug. 31. Smith was taking a picture of Gunnar Sulzen in an extreme long shot. "In this photo, we were experimenting with the settings of the camera." Smith said.

Always on the Move

Behind The Scenes Of Creating The Yearbook

Photo By: Lauryn Franco

Mr. Bouquet helps Lindsay Kendall (8) with the cover of the yearbook Oct. 28. Bouquet was helping choose the color scheme of the cover. "In this photo I was working on theme element with one of my editors." Bouquet said.

Photo By: Lauryn Franco

Rachel Smith(7) worked with her partner to finish their first assignment of the year on Oct. 28. Smith worked hard to make sure all of the components of yearbook were included in her partner spread. "My partner and I were working on our partner's spread to make sure it looked fantastic," Smith said.

Photo By: Gracynn Smith

Gunnar Sulzen(7) posing for Gracynn Smith's(8) framing shot, Sep. 2. Sulzen and his partner were assigned their first project called the partner spread so he was the subject in all her photos. "In this photo, I was pretending to plan something out for my partners framing a picture for her partner spread," Sulzen said

Our Equipment

Tools Used in The Yearbook Classroom

Photo By: Lauryn Franco

Makenna Moore (8) has been in yearbook for 2 years now but the camera can still get confusing, Nov. 2. When first looking at the camera all the buttons were intimidating but you figure it out eventually. "At first it is confusing to use all the buttons and features but after a while you get the hang of it," Moore said.

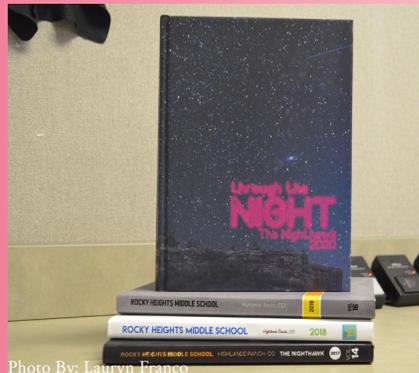

Photo By: Lauryn Franco

The yearbooks of the past years all have a lot of thought put into them, Nov. 2. There were many people working on the yearbook last year. "Making the yearbooks is a long and difficult process but when working as a team we get it done," Franco said.

Photo By: Lauryn Franco

Using the Nikon is a huge privilege the yearbook staff has, Nov. 2. When student Lauryn Franco (8) joined the yearbook staff one of the first things she was taught was how to take care of the cameras. "Using the cameras is not something everyone gets to do so being able to use so it takes responsibility," Franco said