LOUD & PROUD: MAKING NOISE!

While in seventh grade, Alyasia Trujillo loved to cheer on her teammates as they competed in cheer competitions across the nation. But before she picked up her pom poms, Alyasia was a gymnast. She only started cheer after her gymnastics coach told her she thought she would be better at it and would enjoy it more. She started cheer since the third grade and has cheered competitively for five years. "I like it because it is just fun," she said. She practiced three days a week for two hours each day. Competing in cheer competitions has allowed her to travel all over the country. Her team has competed in Florida, Nevada, Utah, and California. As for her future, she saw more cheerleading, but she had her sights on bigger goals, too. "I am smart. I want to graduate with a master's degree, and I want a nice family." Cheers to that!

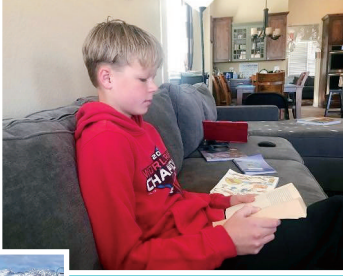

I'VE GOT THIS! Trujillo performs a partner stunt, a skill required for her sport. She puts lots of effort into cheer. "I practice three days a week for two hours a day," she said.

HER TEAM WORKS. Alyasia poses with her team before competition. She has been cheerleading for five years and loves it.

BREATHING FIRE.

Christopher reads his favorite book, Eragon. "It is a fun book to read and has lots of fantasy in it," said Hopkins.

ALL GEARED UP.

Christopher skis at Winter park, one of his favorite places to go. "I started in Pennsylvania and my dad taught me how to do everything," said Hopkins.

YOU KNOW ME I'D RATHER BE...

Christopher Hopkins, as 7th grader, enjoyed multiple hobbies, but some of his favorites were reading and skiing. Christopher's favorite book was Eragon, a fantasy adventure about a kid and a dragon. "I really like it because it's a mix of fantasy, adventure, and sci-fi, and you never know what is going to happen next," said Hopkins. "It is a good book to read when you're bored." Christopher didn't have a lot of patience for boredom. To fill his downtime, he also liked to ski. "I started skiing when I was about 8 years old. I like it because it is really fun. I went for the first time because my dad likes to ski, and he took me." Only moving to Colorado two years ago, Christopher had already scouted some of his favorite ski spots in Winter Park and Alta. To be sure, when Christopher packed for a dream weekend, he put the skis on the rack and a book in his bag.
