are you still watching?

If you were to ask just about any high school student, it is almost guaranteed that they will say that they have binged watched at least one show. Especially during this past year, since students had all the time in the world at home, they found nothing better to do than watch some of their favorite shows. Show and movie platforms such as Netflix, Disney+, Hulu, Prime Video, and HBO Max have gained so much profit from these students that are stuck at home. No matter what type of show or movie you like, there is always an option for you to choose from in any of these different apps. If you are one for fiction and fantasy, it is easy to get lost in the magical world of Harry Potter, or travel through the journey of becoming a Jedi in Star Wars, or simply journeying through a dangerous task in the Lord of the Rings. If you are one for actions, the 23 movies in the Marvel Cinematic universe is the place for you. Teen drama, horror films, science-fiction, comedy, mystery, murder, and just about anything else can be found at any of these providers. With so much time on our hands, students are looking for just about anything to keep them far from bored. There are so many different options to choose from that you may as well just watch them all. Between an addiction to TikTok and Netflix, this generation is fueled with new dances, and hilarious jokes that can only be understood if you have been like every other kid in the world and have binge watched the entire show. What else can you expect from a generation of high school students living through a global pandemic. It is almost a given that they would find a source of compatibility with binge watching shows throughout the day, and into the night.
