

THERE'S

SOON TO BE WOLFPACK MEMBERS

1. Courtney Hire, 10, and Angela Atkinson, 10, pick out costumes for theater class.
2. Wolfpack Theater members performing during one of their first Spring Musical rehearsals.
3. Mr. Andy Mello and his 7th period are caught acting out a dramatic scene
4. Miles Gibbs, 12, auditioned in the early spring for a part in the spring musical, "Little Shop of Horrors."
5. Payton Gnas, 9, work's her best secret agent routine while trying on costume for a taxi driver scene
6. Quinn Moore, 11, sings the song "Dentist!" during rehearsal.

NO BUSINESS, LIKE SHOW BUSINESS

Who would have thought that students would be doing theater classes online? Well, as they say, the show must go on! This year has been a rollercoaster, especially for theater classes as it is a very in-person and hands-on class. Makenna Weiner, 12, said, "This year, theater kids have been recording themselves singing or performing monologues if they are not in-person. Rehearsals are in groups, there is only going to be one production, and the cast and crew are much smaller." As of right now, the production in the works is "Little Shop of Horrors." In theater classes students can try on costumes, act out scenes with friends, classmates, and even Mr. Mello. There are many activities that involve creativity and using your imagination. Students can also show off their improv skills to help perform a scene.

FELLOW THEATER CLASSMATES

“ I love theater with a passion. I love how Mr. Mello can still find ways to do fun activities in the current situation we're all in. ”

“ We got to explore what the after school theater programs get to do. It was interesting to see the costumes and sound booth. ”

“ Since we have been going in it's more physical activities and it actually feels like a theater class. ”

