Y'all READY FOR THIS

This year we started off with a first day pep rally! The whole school got together on the bleachers and the track to celebrate our return. After all the time apart, Vista was finally able to reunite the pack and kick the year off with a big show. A pep rally wouldn't be a pep rally without games and cheers, and the wolves did not hesitate to bring it on. 1. Students in the stands showed their school spirit by clapping, shouting, and enjoying the beginning of a new year. Victoria Cohenour, 10, said, "The pep rally was really fun. It's really great being able to get out of the house and see people without masks and enjoying themselves!"

BACK TO E-LEARNING

When Vista unexpectedly closed for eLearning, Kennedy Larson, 12, tried to make the most of the six days by spending as much of it outside as possible. She said, "It gave me a lot of time to work and go to the gym, but I still managed to time manage badly."

Matthew Vasquez, 10, was able to relax over the long Labor Day weekend by attending the Labor Day Lift Off. He said, "The balloon festival was fun. There were a lot of little tents and activities there and they were having this little session where they light the fires instead of lifting the balloon because of how windy it was. They also had food, bungee jumping, and they had their own little audience stage."

Gregory Wesley, 12, spent his eLearning time out of school trying on face masks. He said, "I was just trying on face masks for fun."

2. The Cheer Team got the crowd going with chants, lifts, and tosses. 3. Ryannah Gagau, 11, was part of several games on the field. She participated in the tug of war and said, "My favorite part of the pep rally was when I picked up my ball and starting running with it to win the game" 4. Paige Livingstone, 12, and Hunter Wortkoetter, 12, hang out on the track as part of the Student Council crew who helped bring spirit to the school at the pep rally.

5. Patrick Sheehan, 12, competing in the ball race. He says "I think it was pretty cool that I got to show underclassmen that the seniors are the top dogs like always, and starting of with me I think we did really good too. I also feel like going out there and showing off for my class. It was a really good experience." 6. Isaiah Stubblefield, 12, and Jaden Salizar, 12, get the year started with a great pep rally. Isaiah said, "The pep rally was dope, we definitely need more school spirit though, like the school needs to do cooler stuff for our school and for the seniors especially." Jaden says, "I'm excited for making the memories now that I'm a senior, I know that all my grades are strong, it's just the mater of fact of making the memories and try not to regret my high school year." 7. Zachary Stansberry, 12, and Jacob Odum, 12, show off their spirit on for the back to school pep rally. Jacob said, "We lost so much in the past year and a half. So I think that everyone should go all out and enjoy it, because who knows that could happen. Especially as a senior, I try to take advantage of every chance to show spirit."

Pack It Up!

Morgan Hampton, 12

"Scooby Doo was my childhood, so I wanted to start school and finish school with it."

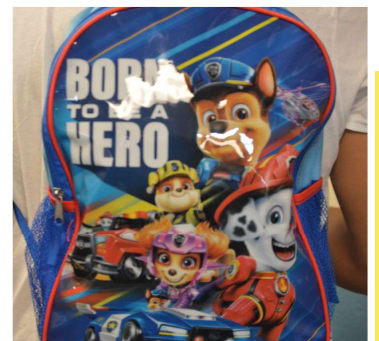

Neal Young, 12

"This back pack defines me is I'm a goofy person, and I like to be a creative person and have things that stand out."

Michael Quinn, 12

"All my friends got this kind of backpack and I thought this one was the coolest."

Andrew Johnson, 12

"The part of this back pack that defines me is how you can be yourself and wear what you want."
