

IN IT TO WIN IT
Seniors Benito Muniz, Matthew Bishop, and Noah Malouff pose with a thumbs up for placing 1st at their September meet. They scored 1st with a total of 87 points, with the AHS JV team coming in 2nd with 45 points.

knowledge is power

Alamosa Knowledge Bowl is one of those clubs that may not be greatly known, but they are a great asset to the school. Masters of knowledge, the members in Knowledge Bowl know massive amounts of information that most people overlook. With undeniable wisdom, each member is able to exceed and prove that knowledge truly is power. With great power, the Alamosa Knowledge Bowl team continues to prove their ability to use their knowledge due to their abundance of trophies and ribbons that they have been accumulating. In this year alone, the varsity team has come up with numerous wins, with the JV team close behind them, placing second. As a team, they work together to make sure that no question goes unanswered; even if they are wrong, they use the opportunity to talk it out with one another, and they are always looking for a way to give something as a potential answer. Competing at Adams State, the Knowledge Bowl team is able to compete with other schools from around the Valley. The whole club constantly gives it their all in every practice and competition, always placing either first or second even though they compete against other schools. During one written round-consisting of a team paper and pencil test- and four spoken rounds, the team fights to answer questions quickly and correctly. It's even a good strategy to buzz in before the end of the question to stop other teams from buzzing in first. With the competitive drive shown by this team, its no surprise that they are all up to the challenge, and they have the awards to prove that no challenge is to tough for their knowledge.

ITS ALL A MIND GAME

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT

Senior Mia Ter-Kulie, and sophomores Jake Fricke and Brock Benton work together to practice for their next Knowledge Bowl meet.

COUNTING THE POINTS

The sponsors of the AHS Knowledge Bowl team, Mr. Relyea and Mrs. Henderson tally the points during the monthly meet.

CHAMPS IN THE MAKING

The junior varsity team placed 2nd against large school JV teams during the December Knowledge Bowl meet.