"My Gold Award focus is the bee population in Monument and surrounding communities. I built bee hotels which provide a habitat for solitary bees to help with pollination and I planted barrels with Colorado Native. We plant them at Prairie Winds Elementary and Rocky Mountain Classical Academy to provide native plants for pollinators. It helps out our community with the bee population to help regrow it and make sure that it stays healthy. I hope to provide a lot of education for both young girls like Daisies and Girl Scouts, and also people in schools like Prairie Winds Elementary and my own school to help them understand why bees are so important, what we need to do to help them, and how we can help them in our own communities," Megan King, 12, said.

"Last summer I went to an FBI training camp. It was actually a really long process and I've wanted to do it for awhile. It was a lot of fun. It connected me to a lot of people in the FBI, so I've gotten to stay in touch with them afterwards and go on police ride-alongs. It was a lot of fun going to Quantico and getting cool training in that sort of situation," Reagen Hitzler, 12, said.

"I got accepted into the Naval Academy, and I also got accepted into Mines as well. I want to major in computer science or something like data science. I haven't thought about a minor, so probably just mathematics or something. I've always wanted to serve, that's just something that I've really wanted to do. And I feel that computer science will really evolve in that area," Caden Chau, 12, said.
