

Remember when you first signed up for the musical sophomore year? Now, the spotlight glows on your face as you dance front and center. Footloose might have been your final high school show, but it was still something new– the first musical in three years.

Three years ago, where were you?

You were staring into the mirror the first time you walked into the weight room, surrounded by black and gold machines. Years later, in that same mirror, you think about how far you've come; how much you've grown. With each rep, you shed off a part of the old you.

Now, you're in the final season of the year, the time of senioritis and the SAT. Tensions and excitement surge through your veins in this last stretch. It's the spirit of Wish Week and the hype for the first Prom in way too long. It's counting down the days until Spring Break, then, just as quick, starting the final countdown of until finals.

You take your last final.

You turn in your chromebook for the summer.

You wave goodbye to the teachers that meant so much to you, you just didn't know it yet.

IN THE GREENHOUSE, JESSE CRAIG, SCIENCE DEPT., waters the plants. The greenhouse supplied students with a more hands-on education in Biology and Plant Biology. "The greenhouse allows me to pass on gardening skills that students can use for a lifetime," Craig said. Photo by A. Zancosky.
