

TEACHERS CLOSET

Alamosa High school is an environment that welcomes all students and teachers to express themselves. The ability to wear what one wants to wear and be who they want to be through their clothes all began with Mr. Dionisio nine years ago. Dionisio was able to show students and teachers that it is okay to be different. Which is where the infamous “Wacky Pants Wednesday” began with Dionisio wearing unique pants every Wednesday and inspired other teachers and students to let loose and wear what they want. This being said Alamosa High School is now filled with different types of styles and showcases the numerous unique forms of personalities throughout the school. Teachers of Alamosa High School decided to join in the fun and the excitement of being able to wear drippy and exiting clothes on Wednesday. This has allowed the men and women at AHS to become comfortable in what they wear to school. The teachers have been huge role models and have impacts on students even if it is the little things. The students appreciate teachers more than ever, especially in this day and age where some students don't feel accepted. With the students of Alamosa High School being able to wear what one wants it makes us one step closer for students to feel accepted.

Where it started...

SMILES ON STUDENTS FACES
Dionisio always brings light into students days which they have started to notice his fun and exciting outfits wanting to be apart of it. Freshmen Taybor Wiedeman and Lily Heersink decided to join in on the enjoyment. Many of these students agree that D makes school fun and more enjoyable for students to attend.

BACK TO THE PAST
Mr. Dionisio also known as “D” has set a great example for his students. Every Wednesday D started dressing up in crazy and exciting outfits and inspired other teachers and students to do the same. Nine years ago when D first came to the school he decided to add excitement into AHS. Dionisio has truly set a great example for the students and teachers at Alamosa High School.
