Creating the Way

Rangeview students take pride in their art work to express their individuality.

The tree on this page was drawn by Laray Urstadt.

Aiden Gamel

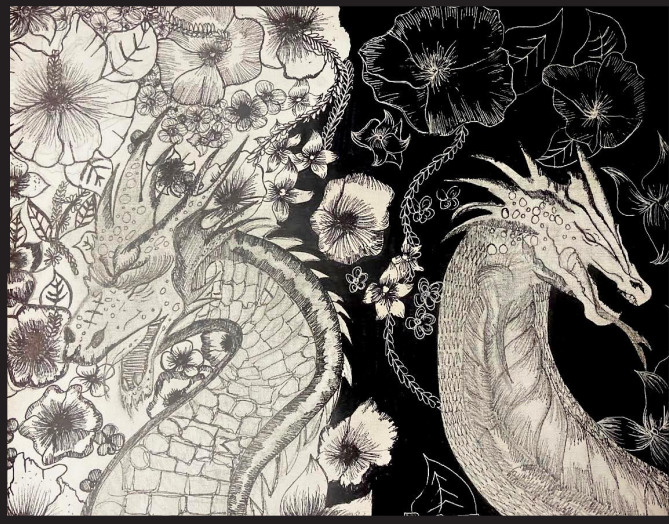

He is a 3rd year ceramic student. Aiden says, "Art is my one escape from school and reality. It honestly just started out as a hobby and now it is my reason for being." He has created many pieces and forms of art throughout his life but many people say they love the playing cards that he paints the most.

Janessa Aragon

She says, "My idea behind the rubixcube head drawing is based off the question, "why do humans form and have addictions." Janessa has doing art for about for years and loves it!

Kayla Bond

She has always been interested in art since she was young. Bond says, "the person who truly changed art for me was my art teacher in elementary school, she always pushed me and helped me develop my love for art." Kayla says that art is her way to express herself and can always see it being a huge part of her life.
