“My favorite part (of TSA) is that you get to work on digital work and mostly get to work on coding.”

STEAMING ON IN TSA

STUDENTS PLACE AT STATE STEM CONTEST

Euclid’s TSA team catapulted itself to spots in national competition after a year of hard work.

TSA -- Technology Student Association -- is a organization where students participate in STEM events at a two-day state competition in February. Projects include creating video games, children’s books, catapults and rubber-band cars.

This year 34 students participated and 20 placed high enough to participate in nationals this summer.

Silas Starbuck, 07, experienced his first year in the popular club. Silas joined TSA because he wanted something fun to do during his spare time with his friends.

“TSA is something you fail in and find your mistakes to create success. It’s also a fun thing to do with your friends.”
