

LET'S GET READY TO RUMBLE

The Legacy student body celebrates at the homecoming assembly

The pep assembly is an integral part of homecoming week at Legacy. Whether it's the poms performance or the whole school doing the roller coaster together, this assembly unifies the student body and gets them excited for the upcoming football game. "It's always fun to see everyone get together and support Legacy," said senior Claire Hendershot. The energy during homecoming week makes nearly everyone have a new-found appreciation for Legacy. Seeing students participate and have more school spirit than normal is very uplifting, especially for student athletes who look for fans' support and excitement. "Homecoming is a way to spread love and happiness throughout the school," said sophomore Tyson Shaver. Legacy has traditions that make the assembly a high point of the week, such as seniors wearing togas and the spirit competition. "High school is short and I want students to make good memories that they can look back on," said Student Body President, senior Angelina Thao. Homecoming brings together the entire student body in a way very few other school events do. copy by addison mcgraw

FALL ASSEMBLY 28

JUDGING GREATNESS

Meet the judges of the Greatest Bolts competition

Ms. Jill Kitzmiller

"The seniors really showed that they were the most spirited class. Their excitement really resonated through the crowd and brought tears to the judges' eyes."

photos by lola barker

Mr. Nicholas Boettcher

"I was a judge last year and wanted to do it again this year! I've trained most of my life in the arts of judging spirit and felt this year was where I really hit my stride as a judge."

Mr. Don Dennert

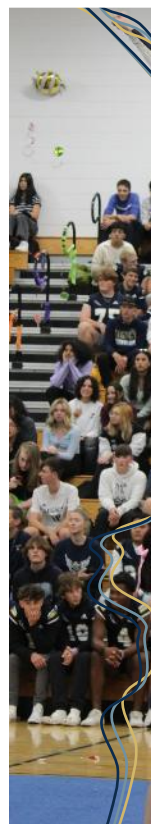

"Enthusiasm and school spirit are always the most important factors that sway my opinion."

WE'VE GOT THE SPIRIT

Seniors Alexandra Urbina, Jostyn Hillesheim, Taylor Shepherd, Cheyenne Trujillo, Gabby Diederich, and Gabby Kruthof propose to the spirit judges. The girls, who are all on the volleyball team, competed with other sports teams to earn the judges' votes. "All of us were laughing a ton and just enjoying the spotlight since it is the last time we would do that together," said Trujillo. photo by alina alred

FLYING HIGH

Senior Avery Ehrig does a liberty stunt during a cheer routine. "During this moment I was feeling absolutely infinite. It was just my team and the mat. We worked extremely hard to perform this routine for our school," said Ehrig. photo by alina alred

A BOOMING ENTRANCE

Senior Yaffer Sosa holds up the speaker on full blast as the soccer team runs out. The team was more than ready to show the school who they are. Sosa said, "My favorite part of the assembly aside from soccer, was dancing at the end with the spirit boys." photo by alina alred

PUMPED UP

The cheer and poms teams perform a joint dance. The pep squad performances are an important part of getting people excited at assemblies. "I just liked all the people together and everything going on," said freshman Reece Shields. photo by ellison ramsey

BUST A MOVE

The boys soccer team performs a dance. The pom's captains assisted the soccer players with this dance, and held three rehearsals prior to the assembly. "We messed up plenty of times, but it was all just a good time," said senior Tate Hansen. photo by alina alred

CHECK YES OR NO

Junior Gabriel Arellano asks his girlfriend, senior Saida Hermosillo to the homecoming dance. With the help of his soccer teammates, Arellano successfully pulled off the proposal. "That whole day I was running around, making sure that everything was in the right place, and we had to organize it. It was kind of stressful," said Arellano. photo by alina alred

LETS MAKE SOME NOISE

Legacy football players show their excitement for their upcoming game. "The whole school was there and all the fall athletes were able to run out and get acknowledge for the sports they play," said sophomore Tyler Anderson. photo by alina alred

WHIP ALL OVER

Greatest Bolts nominees compete in a whipped cream eating contest

Junior Madeline Nguyen competes in a whipped cream eating contest. Nguyen, along with the other Greatest Bolt nominees, compete to see who can find a piece of gum in the pan of whipped cream the fastest. "I did not win, but I did manage to blow a bubble, so that was rewarding," said Nguyen. photo by lola barker