

VETERAN CHEERLEADERS SET AN EXAMPLE

"It's a lot of pressure, but I really do like being a role model for the newcomers," says Chiara Garcia, Jr. She and other returning cheerleaders have shown how to improve a squad. Coach Watson and Coach Garrison decided to focus this season on including new people who are interested in the sport and rebuilding the team. Savannah Welcome, Fr., a new cheerleader, thinks the team has a welcoming environment, and enjoys the workouts. It may be difficult getting up for practice at 5:30 a.m., but these ladies take on the responsibility and dedicate themselves to the team and follow the veteran's lead.

This year, the squad has adopted a new way of spreading cheer and supporting and other athletes. The team is creating new traditions that will bring the girls closer together like doing spirit days on game days. Coach Garrison are starting this year off with positive attitudes! The new coaches and the returning cheerleaders are excited to nurture the newcomers and build an even stronger team from scratch. Many returning cheerleaders are stepping up into leadership roles. Having new leaders on the squad makes all members proud to be part of Coronado's legacy. Cheer veterans are creating an enhanced legacy for Coronado. "Ms. Watson is a lot more accepting of everyone," shares Avery Packer, So.

New cheerleaders feel like they have become part of this family and are excited to see how the team will improve over the season!
