THE O'CONNORS

the o'connor triplets share their experience visiting the white house

Anderson: How did you get into acting?

Reagan O'Connor: Our parents work for the National Christmas Tree Association and they bring the Christmas Tree to the White House every Christmas, and to the observatory too. We got to meet a few people in Washington.

Anderson: What are the types of people you got to meet?

Lauren O'Connor: We got to meet the vice president, her husband, and the people who grew the Christmas tree. We also got to meet the First Lady.

Anderson: What permanent impacts this trip bring?

Jack O'Connor: We got to tour the White House and we got to see stuff inside of it. They had George Washington's sword and it was really cool to see. It was cool to see parts of history that other people don't get to see in person. It was very informative, and we now know a lot more about our country than we did before we went.

Anderson: What was the significance and the importance of the human connection that you saw on your trip?

Reagan O'Connor: I think it was nice that they still talk to us because it's good to know that the people that are running our country are still human too. That they still do the things that we do just talk to normal people like us. It was a very fun time and I think we're all really grateful that we were able to go on a trip.
