"Music is my outlet, and I love it more than anything," Lucy Coughlon says while describing her passion for singing. From her first published song in 2021, "Letter to my Childhood," she became a hit. "My mom is the lead singer in her band, and she really inspires me," Coughlon said.

Coughlon is a proud and strong member of Regis Jesuit's Canta Belles and a two-time All State Choir participant. Coughlon continually shares her talent with the Regis Jesuit community and beyond. She plans to continue to include music in her life throughout her college career.

Ever since Coughlon was little, she had a love for all things music. She wrote her first piece between fifth and sixth grade and took piano and guitar lessons throughout her childhood.

Later in life she hopes to continue to write songs and hopefully work with movie production companies to let her career soar.
