

ONLY AT CAMP

three summer camps,
three experiences

BAND/ORCHESTRA

"I did band camp and orchestra camp, I love my instruments and music as a whole so I take any chance I can get to play. My favorite memory from the band this year was the first time we all played let's groove together". I got goosebumps and that sound makes me want to work harder."

Dante Osuna (9)

"I had to go because I was going to miss too much and I wouldn't be able to do Marching Band. It was hot as hell but i had fun. Being with all the people in marching band was just a fun experience."

Johnathan Holland (10)

COSLI

"I attended this program called Colorado Student Leadership Institution. COSLI teaches various skills and knowledge that apply to life and challenged me mentally in many ways more than high school ever has. COSLI taught me that conversations with other people don't only help you learn things about other people but also might help you learn things about yourself."

GO FOR GOLD

dayvontae sullivan (12) trains with olympic boxing team

"I was introduced freshman year by a friend. I joined because I liked the idea of being able to punch someone in the face with no repercussions. With a couple of years of training, broken jaws, damaged eyesight, and destroyed hands, I'm ranked the 7th best teenage fighter in the country."

RIGHT IN STEP, Greg Atencio (11) stands in line during summer marching band drills. Atencio was appointed as a drum major this year. "While I can't say that I walked away from the conducting stand with a smile everyday, I can say that there was no better feeling than knowing that I helped the band take steps forward because of my efforts," Atencio said. photo by deajane jackson-morgan.

SET IN PLACE, Dodge McCabe (12) is in line during band camp. Band camp was two weeks long rather than one week. "It was nice because we took it a lot more serious and took time to perfect more things to better our overall playing," McCabe said. photo by deajane jackson-morgan

HERE AND NOW

"Banning abortions doesn't stop them, it only stops people from getting safe abortions."

ANNA FELDMAN (12)

"The overturn is a disastrous mistake. It's taking away the right to choose what people can and cannot do with their bodies."

EDWARD HERRERA (12)

"It definitely doesn't respect the rights of lots of women."

IN A COLORFUL DISPLAY, Seneca Iniguez Ramirez (12) rehearses her color guard routine for football games and the parade. This was her second and last color guard camp. "I made so many positive memories but my favorite was when the ice cream truck came to our rescue and we all ate ice cream together," Iniguez Ramirez said. photo by deajane jackson-morgan

PLAYING TELEPHONE, Ethan Kim (9) plays a game of telephone during a game break with Dante Osuna (9) and JoJo Matibag (12). This was first orchestra camp that was combined with Prairie. "When we came back to school, it felt really good to walk into class and already know half the people there and have already played through the music," Kim said. photo courtesy of daria koldabtsov

WITH FOCUS, Miguel Perez (10) plays his trumpet alongside other students. "It was good, great, exciting and fun," Perez said. photo by deajane jackson-morgan

IN FORMATION, Erissa Cooper (11) stands in line during summer drills. "We were marching in the heat, but I appreciated it because everyone in band and color guard got closer and we became a family," Cooper said. photo by deajane jackson-morgan

MINION MANIACS

fans go bananas for minions movie premiere

"I thought it was cute to match with my friends. I wore a yellow shirt with overalls and I brought a banana in the pouch."
