

fall elujah

festive fun | Fall Fest is a day that allows students to have enjoy themselves and unwind. There were activities like human hamster balls and triycle racing. Kaine Horton and Caroline Landvik competed in one of the races. Some students played volleyball on the field or sat with their friends eating Kona Ice. It was also a chance to hang out with other grades. Isabella Meyer hung out with her sister and other high school friends. "People were able to hang out with their friends and do activities that brought them closer together," she exclaimed.

savvy students

smarter not harder | The business fair is held by students in the Introduction to Business class to advertise and sell their products. This opportunity encouraged the young minds to create their own businesses and properly manage their money.

treat yourself | Students sold food, drinks, jewelry, clothing, games, and more. Michael Wilson and James Goodin were only a couple of the students who were sure to purchase delicious treats at the fair.

dress to impress

wacky school spirit | Despite only participating in Grout-Fit Day and Blackout Day, DJ Petrie said his favorite day was Mean Girls Day because "someone says 'gag me with a spoon!'" The fun week encouraged students to be silly and connect with each other. It allowed students to participate in a enjoyable week while boosting school spirit even if it was for the most random reasons.

tropical state of mind | The first day of the week was full of palm trees and sunglasses. Kiera Daly decided that her favorite outfit was "probably Monday, which was Beach Day."

saddle up | Cowboy Day is a fun day to bring out the boots and have a chance to wear that western hat to school. Peyton Sewell showed up in style.

on wednesdays we wear pink | One of the most popular days was Mean Girls day. For Jacob Hard "the wig from the Mean Girls theme" was his favorite accessory.

hooray for gray | Thursday was Grout-Fit Day where students can dress bleak, but chic. Brendan Onorato-Casner dressed in a gray sweater and sweatpants.

unpack that black | Blackout was the theme for Friday, creating a very monotone school. Grace Kingen and Paige Danforth might as well have dressed as twins.

the undead choir

sing your guls out | The first quarter choir class taught by Ms. Grace delivered an outstanding performance. The choir dressed as zombies, vampires, and thrilling things to show their Halloween spirit. They performed Harvest Moon, multiple songs from Nightmare Before Christmas, some small group numbers, and for their big finale, Thriller by Michael Jackson.
