Senior recalls good times

“My favorite memories are hanging out with my friends in the lunchroom. It is definitely just a cozy and friendly environment that you get to enjoy yourself being in.” Liliana Baskins (12)

EMPOWER with flowers

“Every year for senior business classes, we do group projects. This year, our project was having people buy flowers and give them to their friends to raise money for the Wellness Center.” Ashley Wallace (12)

IN FOCUS Capturing the moment, Anna Craze (12) stands steady to take a picture. Craze initially started photography by taking pictures of mountains and flowers. Since then, she switched to taking senior and family portraits professionally. “I love taking senior pictures especially at Chautauqua because Chautauqua is so pretty,” Craze said. “But I also love family photos because with the different family members, there is so much more I can do.” FRIEND FLICKS Striving for perfection, Craze gets the angles right to get pictures of her friends. When things were a little slow, Craze leaned on her support system. “My mom supported me and also my friends because I didn’t really have any clients when I first started out my photos,” Craze said. “So when I was trying to advertise my senior pictures, I just used my friends and pretended like they were seniors.” MOMENT IN TIME Using a steady hand, Craze captures a picture of her friend Emma McCoy (12). Craze explained that her love for photography was more about getting the important moments rather than anything else. “I love looking back at old pictures and I love that you’re able to capture a moment in time and be able to look back on it forever,” Craze said. SMILE With a grin, Craze checks out the pictures she just took of her friends. Photography was Craze’s hobby since she was younger and it has continued to this day. “I definitely want to do this as a job,” Craze said. “If I’m able to get a good business going, I would totally switch over to being a full-time photographer.”
