

HOMECOMING WEEK

IN it to WIN it

"It was a top ten moment of all time for me. Everyone just rushed out and we felt this immense sense of joy," Christian Moro, sophomore and Cougars Gone Wired team member, expressed with a winning smile on his face. The robotics team initially went into the game thinking of nothing but just having a fun time with one another as friends and teammates while trying to win at least one game. Their strategy was to try and exhaust the other team's energy while preserving their own. They felt that it would be a good way to get the upper hand on the opposing team. "After the game, everyone who walked by was like, 'Wow! That was awesome!' and gave us high fives. We felt on top of the world." Fellow competitor Nathan Hurt, senior player of team White Chocolate 2.0, was one of the first people to come out in a wave of cheers when the robotics team beat The New Yorkers. "I just said to myself I'm going to run and see what happens, and everybody followed so I was like heck yeah man." Despite the robotics team not winning the whole tournament, they were truly the highlight of the homecoming dodgeball tournament.

Christian Moro, So.
 "We just got a couple friends together to see if we could just win one game. That was our goal, and I mean, that ended up happening."

Evan Reeves, Sr.
 "I don't think anyone was expecting our team to do well, considering everyone just thought we were just some robotics nerds. So it was great to have everyone in the stands just come rush us, and congratulate us on that."

1. Josh Jake, Sr., and Jakub Olesiak, Jr., hyping each other up!

2. Thomas Broderick, Jr. rocking hawaiian wear.

3. Everyone celebrates the Robotics team big win and they later moved to round 2.

4. Robotics team having fun before the dodgeball tournament.

5. Ms. Ambroz and Mr. Baldwin refing.

6. Na'vid Khizri, Sr. ready to run

7. Advanced Acting team watching the game unfold.

8. Jackson Kelleher, Jr. getting agile.

9. Isabella Martinez, Jr. winding up for a toss.

POWDERPUFF

Powderpuff is an annual tradition at Coronado where the roles of the Junior and Senior girls and boys are reversed. The boys cheer on the girls who are out playing on the field.

SENIORS

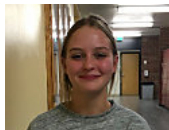

JUNIORS

1. Powderpuff cheer team celebrates after the performance. Sophomore cheerleaders Adeline Williams and Addison Jacobucci choreographed the routine and coached the boys.
2. Juniors Melanie Jones and Averie Tucker watching for the next move from the seniors.
3. Sophia Hegler, Jr.
4. The Junior powderpuff team.
5. The girls fighting out on the field.
6. Star quarterback Olivia Collins, Sr., keeps her graduating class's perfect powderpuff record.
7. Lucero Romero, Sr., celebrating after the seniors big win!
8. The Seniors powderpuff team.
9. Cheerleaders showing off their pyramid.
10. Zayveon Chavez, Jr., holding our very own cougar in a shoulder sit.

Pagett Franklin, Sr.

"I just figured it's senior year and a lot of my friends were doing it. I also thought it would be fun and put myself out there."

"PUT MYSELF OUT THERE"

Jenna Heeny-Rozsa, Jr.

"I did powderpuff because it's my last two years of high school and I wanted to have the experience and the memories."