

Walking the stage to new successes and honors

How did it feel to be a part of the NHS inauguration?

Mira Lindeman, 11

"It was a really cool experience to get recognized for something that I was really proud of, and I got to share that experience with my peers." photo courtesy of anastasia harrison

Addie Solomon, 11

"It felt really good to be a part of something for the school and to be able to celebrate our accomplishments." photo courtesy of addie solomon

Emilee Han, 11

"It was a really special moment to be recognized for my academic achievement and hard work. It was also really fun to do it alongside my friends." photo courtesy of anastasia harrison

2. Get In Costume At the annual Trunk or Treat event on Oct. 28, students got to pass out candy to young students from our feeder schools. Ava Matherly, 11, Tiana Estrella, 12, Lexington Hertzberg, 11, and Millie Marsh, 11, were among the crowd as they gave out candy on the behalf of the Spanish National Honors Society. "One of the teachers brought their cars and we got to decorate with spiders, spider webs, and banners," Marsh said. "We also got to set up the candy and stuff like that too." photo courtesy of aisha hayward

3. Taking The Lead Sitting with the young students at Fairview Elementary School, Summer Short, 11, smiles as she leads the lesson. Spanish National Honors Society spent their day participating in activities around the school for their annual field trip on Feb. 16. "I got to gain some leadership skills from teaching lessons to the kids," Short said. "Overall it was a really impactful and inspiring experience." photo courtesy of aisha hayward

1. Smile Big Posing, the Spanish National Honors Society stands in front of Fairview Elementary School for their field trip. "This is a field trip we do every year," said Millie Marsh, 11, "We volunteer there and teach them about junior achievement" photo courtesy of aisha hayward.

"I decided to join SNHS because it's fun getting to know the other people that are in Spanish classes, and getting to go on fieldtrips. Like, we went to an elementary school and taught little kids in Spanish."

Ava Matherly, 11

1. Point It Out Sitting with Andrew Hoelting, 12--Ellie Lamphier, 12, points out important moments in the book. photo courtesy of kelly kane

2. Write Your Thoughts In the library, Ellie Lamphier, 12, helps Andrew Hoelting write his essay. photo courtesy of kelly kane

What do you enjoy about NEHS?

The National English Honors Society, focuses on helping other students with their writing needs. "I think it's fun to help people with English and edit essays," senior Ellie Lamphier said. "I'm good at English and it's nice to be available to help others."

Hard decisions, good outcomes

Why did you apply to SNHS?

Madison Taylor, 10
"I thought it was really cool how they connected to different cultures." photo courtesy of aisha hayward

Taylor Kirchner, 11
"I really enjoy learning the language and I want to be fluent." photo courtesy of aisha hayward

Learning through trips

SNHS takes a field trip to Fairview Elementary School
page by selena abureesh

An annual tradition for the Spanish National Honors Society is going to Fairview Elementary School. SNHS went on this field trip for JA Day and got to spend lots of time with the kids. "We volunteer there and teach the kids a lesson for junior achievement, which is all about economics and entrepreneurship," junior Millie Marsh said. "We get to go to recess, lunch, and specials with them." Expanding their leadership skills is not only the purpose of this field trip, as students also get to work on their Spanish speaking skills. "I got to expand my Spanish skills because there were a lot of Spanish speaking students and staff there," junior Summer Short said. Overall, this experience was not only fun but memorable as well. "It was a really impactful and inspiring experience," Short said.

Making christmas wishes come true

Why did you choose to do a toy drive?

grady maccougall, 12

tanner cohers, 12

"I know a lot of the people at Children's Hospital and many kids there don't get to have a big Christmas. So, we wanted to give kids in the hospital presents for Christmas." photo courtesy of anastasia harrison

"We chose the toy drive because Grady knows people at the Children's Hospital and it's a good cause. It was a good experience to deliver them." photo courtesy of anastasia harrison

95
Because we are students
national honors societies

"My biggest accomplishment this year was when I got most improved in swim and dive,"

Kalee Clark, 10

"Something I'm most proud of this year is winning most of my tennis matches."

Renee Burden, 11

"My biggest accomplishment this year was getting in A in my AP class."

Madison Nguyen, 10