Jackson Stillman tees off and watches the ball fly. He shared that his favorite part of golf is "probably the laid back attitude." He explained, "It's not super competitive but it's competitive to the point where we drive each other to improve more. But, I can still be relaxed when I'm at golf practice. I don't have to stress over it."

in for the play

Football player Damien Edlund plays advantage for Standley Lake. He shared, "I like the environment I like being around my teammates, they're a great group of guys. We're always bonding on and off the field, getting to know who everybody is. On the field having their back and being on their side making sure they're doing their job, doing my job and off the field making sure they're on top of their school work so they can play."

Kaleb King looks onto the green with fondness. His love for his team is unmatched, seen through his supportive nature and dedication.

Fore! The boys golf team takes their skills to the course where athletes are challenged by rigorous competition, patience, and skill. Jack McLucas-Kinder, who has been golfing since his freshman year, looked back on the season fondly. "It was my senior season, so I had to make it as fun as I could," he shared. Jack loved his team and enjoyed his teammates, including Hudson Subach, who he supported through his first year of golfing. Jack continued, "I had some really good teammates. Hudson was really fun, watching him golf and his personality are awesome. He got a little better (throughout the season). It was his first year playing though, so he was still trying to figure it out," Jack explained. Although all tournaments are fun, the culmination to the state tournament is especially exciting. Jack mentioned that the state tournament was the most fun. It was, however, unfortunate that Jack got sick the day before state. Overall, Jack loves golfing and joked that the main thing he learned this season was that "it's taught me how to deal with old people, they're just everywhere." Eli Brandow also enjoyed his season immensely. He has been playing with his dad since he was young, but has enjoyed joining the high school team. Eli shared that this year "the team was more competitive with each other, which brought out the best of us."

Watch Out! JA Advantage rugby player Mariah Healey has been playing rugby for five years. She's been a part of the same team during this time. "I love the community that I'm a part of, they've been with me since the start, my teammates are amazing," Mariah explained.

Flippin' it

It Takes a Team. Emma Schneider, an advantage gymnast at Pomona High School, has been a gymnast since she was four years old. In all her years as a gymnast, it's her teams that stick out to her. "I really like that it's an individual and team sport. Doing an advantage sport brings people from different schools together. I think it's really fun to meet new people and do the sport we love." Emma shared her favorite team bonding event was getting dinner with the team. "Every year after state we all go to Buffalo Wild Wings together and we all get wings. We stay there for three or four hours, it takes so long," she laughed, reminiscing about the fun she and her team had.
