

Let's get ROWDY!

The Rowdies dedicate their time to lifting up the school's spirit.

making MEMORIES

One student's memorable moment from being in Rowdies.

!! [My favorite memory is] the Pine Creek [volleyball] game; that was super fun. We destroyed them and we were super loud!!

Role models. Motivating the players, Alexandra Watts '23 shows her spirit at an away game. Watts was inspired to join Rowdies from previous students who dedicated their time to uplifting school spirit. "It was always more fun at games when the Rowdies were there and I thought that would be a cool thing to become a part of," Watts said. photo by: elizabeth schechner

Get into it. Shocked at a turn of events, Evelyn Ryan '23 looks to the court in shock. Rowdies has encouraged Ryan to get out of her comfort zone. "Rowdies has given me the confidence to lead the crowd and the Rampart community," Ryan said. photo by: devyn miranda

Number one fan. On the edge of her seat, Zoeey Garn '23 supports the volleyball team. A part of Rowdies for two years, Garn has a different perspective of the school. Said Garn, "Rowdies has made me more aware of the culture and spirit within Rampart." photo by: devyn miranda

Just in time. Dressed to the nines in his spirit wear, Avyion Cooley '23 applauds for the team. Being a part of the Rowdies program has opened Cooley's eyes to a new perspective on school spirit. He said, "My school experience has been more enjoyable; I wish I would have joined sooner." photo by: devyn miranda

Make the impact. Showing her support for the football team, Rachel Plechas '23 gets loud with fellow Rowdies Joshua Conlin '23. One benefit of the Rowdies program is the impact it has on the school's culture. "I think Rowdies is a great program and it helps bring optimism into everyone's school experiences," said Plechas. photo by: roewyn korwek is it CURSED?

A school-wide superstition gets called into question.

Mean mug. Glaring into the ram staff's face, Faith Farley '23 shows the statue who's boss. The ram staff was originally a symbol of the school's spirit. However, over the past few years, students have had sneaking suspicions about the luck, or lack thereof, it brings to the school's sports teams. Farley said, "It's definitely cursed. You know, we bring it to games and we lose. We don't bring it to games and we do better." photo by: olivia alaska

TRADITION
Rowdy Elizabeth Kuiper shares the meaning behind her overalls.

Made to last. Posing with Ciara Piffarero '23, Elizabeth Kuiper '23 shows off her handmade Rowdies overalls. Kuiper wanted to make a statement through the overalls, and display her personality. "I wanted to put in a good amount of effort into my overalls because I knew I'd get good use out of them, and make a statement with them," said Kuiper. photo donated by: elizabeth kuiper
