

1. Focusing In Ryan Stewart, 11, focuses in as he does his work for AP US History. Ryan says "It's a good class as long as you're willing to put in the work at school and at home," photo by peyton davis 2. Hard At Work Wyatt Degenhart, 11, is putting in the work as he's focused on his AP assignment. It's a tough class but as long as you do the work you will be fine. photo by charlotte ratcliff

Persuasive Halloween Jaz Medel, Kylie Pritchard, and Gemma Gibbs, 12, build their Halloween structure in Mrs. Harrison's ACC 1021 class the week of Halloween. Each team had to persuade that theirs was the best in order to practice ethos, pathos, logos. photo by anastasia harrison

4. Getting Work Done Makayla Odette, 10, is working on an assignment in AP Government. Makayla said "It's a good class for everyone to take," photo by kendelle hansen 6 Prep Work Logging into Canvas, Ms. Shonka's 3rd period English I class starts a reading activity to begin To Kill a Mockingbird. Each English class started novels with background info to introduce students to themes. photo by peyton davis

The Cat's pajamas

US History classes celebrated their 1920's unit with a class party

1. Enjoying The Moment Lincoln Taets, 10, is enjoying the time at the 1920's US History event. "Dressing up made it fun and seeing everyone participate was really nice!" said Taets. photo by makenna clinton 2. The 1920's Kilyk Crawford, 10, is enjoying the 1920's US history night. Kilyk says "Dressing up was required but I feel like that aspect just made it so much better," photo by makenna clinton

5. God's Gift Noor Reslan, 10, works on a poster for a sermon on god "It was really fun and interactive" Noor said. "I was able to do a speech on something I really cared about" photo by peyton davis

Persuasive halloween

Mrs. Harrison's ACC practices ethos, pathos, and logos

page by peyton davis, charlotte ratcliff, and alli ellison

Putting the gingerbread together wasn't the only type of bonding that was happening. Mrs. Harrison's ACC 1021 class used their knowledge of ethos, pathos, and logos to create a frame for their Halloween structures. The goal of the assignment was for groups to create a Halloween "gingerbread house" and prove theirs was the best with ethos, pathos, and logos.

"This was probably my favorite day of the year," senior Gemma Gibbs said. "Most days the class is writing-based but this change made such a difference."

Senior Jaz Medel agreed, "It felt really nice with everyone having a job just because we weren't needing to worry about finishing it in time, we had one person doing one thing and someone else do another it was so much fun," Medel said.

47 | Because we are students social studies & english

"I'm proud because I have an offer to go play football for the university of Puget Sound,"

Sam Axelrod, 12

"I really like hanging out with people and having a good time, smiling's my thing I guess,"

Logan Kettering, 9

"I'm most proud of overcoming challenges and not giving up I guess,"

Morris Deal, 11