

ART PROJECT Schuyler Stowitts (7) completes a project in his theater class. However, when asked what was the most important thing he learned this year, he said, "World War II in ELA. Learning about the Jews and Nazi's and how horribly they were treated."

SHOOTING & GETTING IDEAS Staff member Audrina Dries (8) experiments with a camera during yearbook class. "In yearbook, I like talking to people for the assignments, and in general designing pages," Dries said.

A HELPING HAND. During the first week of school, Dillon Ainsley (6) gets help from Mrs. Rachel Dunn in finding his classes. "I wasn't scared because one-third of my sixth grade is from my old elementary school," Ainsley said.

HALLWAY HANGOUT! During science Kroix Lucero (8) and his friends do work in the hallway. "My favorite class is science because of dinosaurs," Lucero said.

This year, everybody had to deal with something that was

HARD,

TIME CONSUMING,

AND STRESSFUL.

But the thing is,
all the mishaps and mistakes are what make middle school

SO FUN.

After all, a game

ISN'T WORTH PLAYING IF IT ISN'T
at least a little challenging.

Perfectly planned days where nothing goes in a direction
you could have never predicted hardly ever end up making special inside jokes with your friends.

Yeah, this year has been all over the place.

It's been stressful,
chaotic,
and fun,

And that's what made it so

NEXT LEVEL!
