

STUDENTS divided

Different Learning Methods. From recorded video lessons to in-person lectures, every teacher has a different method of delivering their lessons. It is important to learn which method works best for each student. Darin Walter, who was in Geometry, said, "Mr. Proctor does warm-ups in the beginning and then we watch videos and do homework. I like watching the videos and then having a quiet environment to work." Dustin Reidy would rather have more time to get work done in his College Statistics class. "It's a lot of lecturing and not a lot of work time, which is expected considering it's a two-time a week class," he said. Teachers try alternative class styles to figure out how each student learns best, this is where the most growth and improvement happens.

Homecoming Parade. Many students attend the parade at the elementary to kick off Homecoming week. Kate Rock and Olivia Burgower volunteered to walk in the parade for Key Club. "When we came around the corner to the second part of the school, they were singing the fight song and it was the cutest thing," Kate said. Olivia Saenz and Tate Stadler represented their clubs. National Honor Society members rode in the back of a truck while cheering. "My favorite part was seeing the kids faces when we had the rubber duckies because I feel like it was very unique," Sydney Duncan said. Jayden Hughes and Eliza Eichelberger walked for NAHS.

The Rocks and Stars.

From looking at the stars to opening geodes, the Astronomy and Earth Science classes are having new and exciting experiences. All students had the opportunity to go out on to the field for the first Astronomy Night in years.

"The best thing we saw was Jupiter.

Mr. Kirkley got it to point right at Jupiter and we could see all four moons simultaneously," Zack Lemanski said. In Earth Science, Aashika Kumari shared her favorite part of cracking geodes was "seeing the inside of each geode and what they turned out to be."

Students like Owen Gamble enjoyed learning more about space and rocks through science lessons.

In joining communities and clubs as such, students can feel a sense of belonging and importance. It can be very important to an individual as they may find it as a way to define and explore themselves.

DJ Chandler

Over the years, Chandler Kline has broadened his name and who he is as a DJ. "I have expanded my career in multiple ways since last year's Homecoming. I am now a Resident DJ at The Church Nightclub, playing there approximately every other week, the same venue that has been headlined by artists such as Deadmau5 and Flux Pavilion. Additionally, I have played at EDM festivals both in and out of state. Outside of the EDM scene, I also have done work at restaurants such as Kona Grill and Twin Peaks. I am also currently in negotiations to play at Larimer Lounge, Beacon, and Jaguar Room. I run a freelance DJing business for private events that is hosted through my website chandlerkline.com," he said.

Freshmen and seniors cherished Homecoming for either their first or last time. Lilagrace Huffer danced and played air hockey for her last swing. "This dance meant a lot. Everything I did before the dance was deeply thought out to make it my most memorable Homecoming," Lilagrace said.

Lily Rector danced with her friend Michaela Godfrey for their first dance as high schoolers.

A Night to Remember. At Homecoming, students created memories, shared laughter, and danced like there's no tomorrow. Charley Harrold had a fun time dancing with her friends and being able to enjoy the music. Daisy Rush liked the dance for different reasons. "I think taking photos in the photo booth with Mr. Page was the most fun," Daisy said. Owen Gamble, Chase Wittman, Kylee Reed, and Levi Hinson also enjoyed a simple slow dance with friends, making it appear all worth while. Through all the music and dancing, Homecoming became a place where there was an abundance of smiles proving just how exciting it was. Seniors Payton Stevens, Cody Boone, and John Sanborn danced as they were the reason for getting the crowd more involved. "It was amazing. By far one of the best things we've done. All of the other Homecomings were not exactly the greatest but with Chandler DJing, actually having good equipment, and having the stairs was great," John said.

A Dance of Emotions. With new experiences and final memories in the making, every student felt a sentiment. Adriana Kahanek along with Aleya Beimers and Mark Leoni spent the night reminiscing about the fact that they were at their last Homecoming dance. "I think it was a good one to end off on because I had good memories from it, so I'll be happy to know that this was my last HoCo and I will remember it for a long time," Adriana said. Though this was the seniors' last Homecoming, it was the first for the freshmen. Hannah Douglas spent the night with her friend Kat Shadrach. "I loved hanging out with my friends and dancing the whole night," Hannah said. The excitement combined with the bittersweet emotions made this year's homecoming one to remember for a lifetime.
