What marks the end of a phoenix's life? When can it no longer be reborn after it has burned out? According to myth, the death of a phoenix is impossible. When it dies it is reborn in flames. Though the phoenix is just the idol for our schools mindset and does not exist outside of fantasy, what it represents is real. The constant perseverance to not let an obstacle stop your journey. Becoming the ultimate version of yourself and still pushing the limits you and the world have set. That phoenix's life, your journey in your own, only ends when you say it does.
