

we all know SOMEONE,
who knows SOMEONE,
who knows SOMEONE ELSE.

I KNOW YOU Lillian Tann stands in the student section, cheering with her closest friends at a pep assembly. "Seeing familiar faces around the halls seeing my friends' faces, that makes me the happiest," Tann said when asked what she likes the most about coming to school. Photo by E. Roberts

GOOD AS IT GETS. Ms. Rebecca Rankens has taught at many schools, none of which rival the one she now calls home. "You know the saying 'the grass is always greener on the other side'? I think CT is the greener grass," said Rankens. She was well loved throughout the building and worked hard to have a positive impact. Photo by N. Gokidi.

BE HAPPY. Kadee Green is a student who is heavily involved in the unified program. From helping to set up events to spending time with kids, she loves it all. "They all radiate such joy. When you walk in and they're so happy and it just makes you appreciate the little things in life," Green said. Her impact on the unified community and the school as a whole was not one that went unnoticed. Photo by E. Roberts

GOLDEN RULE. Ethan Finnelli is found on the dance floor at his last homecoming as a senior. For him, one of the things he took away from his high school experience was an important message. Be kind. "I like to be kind because I know what it's like to not have anything, spreading kindness is what we need in this world," Finnelli said. Photo by B. Green.

FOLLOW THE LEADER. A key part of every high school game is the student section leader, usually a senior, who is in charge of leading all of the chants. His senior year, Nate Gilmore held that position. "My favorite chant to lead has to be P.A.R.T.Y because it's fun to battle the opposing section to see who is the loudest," Gilmore said. *Photo by M. so even though it might be impossible to know everyone, that doesn't make you any less CONNECTED
