Practice Makes

PERPET

To do well in anything it takes time and practice. Ian Zabaronick explained, "It was a really pressured game and I needed to make the shot." Shots aren't the only important thing, there are many other aspects to a team you need to be good at, such as teamwork. Andrew Kozlowski explained that his team is good at working together. Ben Meier, Asher Calkins, Charlie Murray, and Akasha Cousteau-Westdal are amazing examples of teamwork on and off the court, because they communicate and understand each other.

There's No

I in TEAM

Playing on a basketball team means that you have to work together to be successful on the court. "We work together pretty well, there is few miscommunication, but overall, we do really good," explained CJ Hawkins. Akasha Cousteau-Westdal and Gunnar Nygrenhave been working really hard to practice good teamwork. These boys must learn to work together to shoot baskets and win.

Baskethall

Dasketoar
Pavel Andreev
Asher Calkins	i
Riley Carson	i
Mathew Chichirico
CJ Hawkins
Josh Kingen	i
Logan Lane	i
Eilan Lucas	i
Brody McVay	i
Teague Murrey	i
Gavin Prevost	i
Oumar Blade	{
Akasha Cousteau-Westdal	{
Nathan Fecko	{
Matteo Gagliano	{
Andrew Kozlowski	{
Ben Meier	8
Hawk Meineke	{
Charlie Murray	{
Gunnar Nygren	8
Dumebi Orji	{
Caleb Sharit	{
Finn Slavin	{
Cael Tomalak	{
Dylan Verkamp	{
Michael Wilson	{
lan Zabaronick	{

He shoots, He sco

The first shot you make is always a joyous feeling as your body fills with excitement. Hawk Meineke explained, his first shot felt excellent. In basketball there are many different kinds of baskets you can make and many rules to follow. Nathan Fecko practices his layups for the games to make the perfect shot without traveling. The whole point of basketball is to get the most points by making the shot, therefore Michael Wilson focuses on shooting so he can score and bring home the victory.

IAGU,